ALEXANDRIA NEWS NOTES.

ALEXANDRIA, May 29.—An old pump was removed from the oldest well in Virginia today. It stood in front of the Alexandria police station on the east side of the market. The well there was dug in 1754, and from that time to the present it has yielded a supply of clear water, but not drinkable. It was the favorite place in olden days for the trial of the hand engines, and has been of immense use in the past century and a half.

FUNERAL OF BLAIN CRAIG.

The funeral of the late Blain Craig took place from Wheatley's undertaking parlors in King street this morning. The interment was made in Douglass Cemetery. Craig was cut in two by a freight train at Waterloo last Saturday afternoon.

TO DEMONSTRATE FIRE SIGNAL.

George W. Petty left Alexandria for New York last night, where he will demonstrate the working of his fire engine signal to Chief Croker.

THEFT OF JEWELRY.

F. Bendheim reports to the police that thieves entered his house last Saturday night and stole therefrom a lady's gold watch and fob, one pearl necklace, and $15 in money.

The graves of the deceased members of the order were strewn with flowers, and after the singing of hymns addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. W. F. Fisher, of the Baptist Church; the Rev. J. A. Jeffers of Trinity Methodist Church; and the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church.

BUILDINGS LIMITED TO 90 FEET IN HEIGHT

Buildings erected on the north side of G street, between Seventh and Eighth streets northwest, must not exceed 90 feet in height. This is the substance of a recommendation made by Engineer Commissioner Biddle today.

The width of G street, near the Patent Office, from building line to building line is 90 feet, and the height of buildings will be limited to the same distance.

This Will Interest Many.

F. W. Parkhurst, the Boston publisher, says that if any one afflicted with rheumatism in any form, or neuritis, will send their address to him at 48 Shawmut Building, Boston, Mass., he will direct them to a perfect cure, or, in other words, to sell or give, only tells you how he was cured after years of search for relief. Hundreds have tested it with success.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SENIORS IN CAP AND GOWN IN ANNUAL MARCH THROUGH THE CITY STREETS

THE PROCESSION ON THE MOVE.
An Imposing Sunday Afternoon Spectacle Led by President Needham.

STUDENTS OF G. W. U. HEAR ANNUAL SERMON

Two Hundred Seniors and Faculty in Cap and Gown
March From University Building to Memorial
Convention Hall—Impressive Exercises.

Two hundred seniors, in caps and gowns, marched from the George Washington University building, to Memorial Convention Hall, yesterday afternoon and listened to the baccalaureate sermon preached by the Rev. Wallace H. Radcliffe.

The procession was imposing. President Needham and the faculty marching in front and followed by a splendid array of young men and women, who will be sent out into the world in a day or so as the first graduates of the new George Washington University.

President Needham Presides.
When the procession reached Memorial Hall, the members of the faculty took seats upon the platform.

Graduates were seated in the main hall of the auditorium. President Needham presided, and the Rev. Frank Hagar Bigelow conducted the services. "The young man the heavenly vision comes," he said.

"No soul is shut in to the hard, prosaic existence. Every life has its garden, its well, its mountain top. Truth does not always and to every one appear, but it does appear. Your full orb, but it does appear. Your young men shall see visions. They come with divine purpose; they inspire purpose and motive; they ordain conduct; they mold character; they shape events and ages. The face of the world was changed because Paul had this vision. To every young man going down the Damascus road comes a glowing vision of desire and opportunity. Obedience to the heavenly vision will bring to you exactly what it brought to Paul.

Made by Our Visions.
"We are made by our visions. Tell me your ideal, and I will tell you what you are. The dream reveals the man. The glory of the opened heavens transfigured the purpose and emotion of the heart, and made Paul the greatest gentleman, save Christ, that ever lived. A man's manner is his character. Paul never forgot himself, for love persuaded him and his work. The Christian is a knight errant of piety. A Christ-like boor, a braying tumbler, are anomalies in the household of faith. Paul's vision compelled success also, for ideals rule the world. Luther dreamed of the open Bible before a reformation came. Columbus dreamed of the New World before he saw it. Yet we learn by doing. Obedience is the law of development. Incurate your dream. Work it out. You are today on the road to Damascus. Between you and the gate a vision comes."

IRISH-AMERICAN UNION PAYS MEMORIAL TRIBUTE

Appropriate memorial exercises were held yesterday afternoon over the graves of thirty Irish patriots in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. The graves were decorated with flowers by the members of the Irish-American Union and the Emerald Club. The decorators formed in a procession and marched from one grave to another. At each grave a few words of tribute were said, and a basket of flowers was placed on the last resting place of the patriot.

The last grave decorated was that of Dr. Thomas Devin Reilly. Here the procession was halted, and addresses were made by P. T. Moran and P. J. Halgan.

The graves decorated were the following:
Dr. Thomas Devin Reilly, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Boyie, Thomas Holden, Patrick Corcoran, Thomas P. Pullin, Henry Corcoran, John O'Meara, James Flannagan, James L. O'Connor, D. A. Mahoney, Cornelius Koehane, Col. Patrick Downing, Daniel Grady, Thomas Fitzgerald, James Bollew, the Rev. Father Ryan, Dr. Cleary, Edward Kennedy, John Merna, P. O'Connell, Capt. William Murphy, Daniel A. Brosnan, John Fleming, the Rev. Father Walter, Michael Cavanaugh, Patrick Moore, John Coughlin, P. J. McGilgott, Patrick Fleming, and Stephen McGrath.

"CAMP GOOD WILL" BEGINS TOMORROW

The opening of "Camp Good Will" for the summer of 1935 will take place tomorrow. Already many people have signified their intention of being present to view the Summer Outings Center that did so much to please and benefit its hundreds of little guests last season. The "camp" is adapted for just the kind of rest and good time needed by those who have been closed up in stores and offices through the winter. It is a large farm sufficient to provide for an almost unlimited number of picnickers; it is situated on one of the highest hills in Rock Creek Park, and is a center from which some of the most delightful walks may be taken; it is equipped with tents, playgrounds, etc., for the benefit of the children who are given a two weeks' vacation in the summer, but will entertain and please quite as well the friends who attend its opening.

MORMONISM ISSUE OF UTAH POLITICS

Salt Lake City at Fever Heat Over
Question of Extending Church
Franchises.

"The citizens of Salt Lake face a situation, unique in many ways, but generally speaking, not entirely dissimilar from the municipal muddles in some of your Eastern cities," said Ogden Hiles, a prominent attorney of Salt Lake City, Utah, at the New Willard last night.

"Mormonism is the great question we have to deal with. The church has not only entered into politics, but has entered into all the avenues of business as well. It owns the street railway, the lighting plants, the waterworks, and has large stores and manufacturing establishments. Any effort by an outsider to establish himself in business is resented."

"Municipal politics, although the election is months away, is already at fever heat. In my opinion two tickets will be in the field, one a Mormon ticket and the other a Gentile ticket."

"The city council, equally divided, with eight Mormons and eight Gentiles, is now in deadlock on the question of extending for a hundred years all the franchises held by the church. That is the point upon which the municipal battle is to be fought. It is impossible to foretell the result."

His last visit here was forty years ago. The changes that have taken place in the Capital City since then, he said, are remarkable.

BIDDLE DENIES REQUEST FOR CEMENT SIDEWALK

No sidewalk will be laid on the south side of Rhode Island avenue northeast from Twelfth street to connect with the walk on Adams street as requested by the Brookland Citizens' Association. The estimated cost of the work is $5,000. Engineer Commissioner Biddle in denying the request says that the condition of the sidewalk fund will not allow it. It is not possible at present to lay sidewalks in front of new houses, or to replace old brick walks which have become dangerous, as rapidly as is desired. It does not, therefore, seem good policy to lay sidewalks over this length when it is entirely unimproved and apparently not likely to be improved for some time to come."

WATER CONSUMPTION SHOWS GREAT WASTE

Official Report on the Subject Gives Interesting Data Concerning Available Supply and Possibility of Its Failure—Most in Cold Weather.

A recent official report on the subject of the water consumption of this city discloses a condition of affairs of vital interest to the people of the District and one demanding that it be soon terminated by the application of an efficient remedy.

Inquiry from official sources and in the line of this report has elicited the information that a daily consumption of 60,000,000 gallons is considered adequate to the reasonable requirements of the District, domestic, manufacturing, municipal and federal.

The actual consumption under ordinary conditions varies from sixty to sixty-five million gallons per diem, giving a constant, every-day, all-the-year-round waste of twenty to twenty-five million gallons a day. This state of affairs might continue for a few years, so far as the supply is concerned, for the capacity of the filtration plant is 75,000,000 gallons a day, and the aqueduct can easily supply that quantity.

Ran Up to 100,000,000

During the cold weather of last February, however, the consumption on several days ran between 90,000,000 and 100,000,000, and on one occasion reached 105,000,000 in twenty-four hours. Even this condition of affairs might be tolerated temporarily, as the flow of the aqueduct and the permissible depletion of the reservoirs would suffice to keep up this supply for a period somewhat longer than that of the cold spell last winter.

But when the filtration plant is in operation with its maximum capacity of 75,000,000, it is obvious that if more than that quantity is used the surplus over the 75,000,000 which goes through the filter beds must be supplied direct from the mains, and hence the supply, after having been purified at great cost, must be repolluted by the introduction of unpurified water into the mains.

The danger to the public from the use of raw Potomac water will not be so great as at present, since a large proportion of the supply will have been purified and will to that extent dilute the impure water entering the distribution system. But the danger will exist in a very definite and substantial degree, and no measures which can possibly be adopted to prevent the necessity of repolluting the filtered supply during the cold weather of next winter can be neglected without the gravest responsibility.

The 25,000,000 of all-year-round waste results from bad order of the distribution system and house fixtures, and the indifference of consumers which permits a constant flow of water for no other reason than to avoid the trouble of shutting it off. The causes of this waste are difficult to assign as between the consumers individually and the consumers collectively.

A Definite Cause.

The 30,000,000 of cold weather waste results from a perfectly well-defined and definite cause, which is the disposition of consumers to avoid the freezing of pipes and fixtures by allowing water to run continuously instead of taking proper means to protect the pipes from cold or to turn the water off from the house at night when rooms are allowed to fall to freezing temperature. This cause of waste rests absolutely with the individual consumer, and can be reached only by the use of a police power. All efforts heretofore made have been ineffective.

The reasons why they have been ineffective should be known to those who have tried to enforce preventive measures, and it should not be impossible to use a police system free from the defects of former ones which will reach the desired results. A fundamental feature of a successful plan would seem to be one which will place the punitive or coercive power in the hands of the administrative department, requiring no co-operation or assistance from the courts.

ILLUSTRATED SERVICES BY DR. NEWMAN CLOSE

The illustrated services as conducted at the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets, by Dr. S. M. Newman, were brought to a close last evening.

These illustrated sermons of Dr. Newman have attracted a great deal of attention during the winter. "Mrs. Brown's Message to the World" was the subject of the last sermon by Dr. Newman.

The evening services will be brought to a close Sunday evening with the choral service.
